

LANGE NACHT DER MUSEEN 29.08.2026

Berlin, 30th August 2026

More than 50,000 visitors on the trail of crime: the Long Night of Museums thrills Berlin

The Long Night of Museums has captivated culture enthusiasts late into the night on Saturday, 29th of August 2026: more than 50,000 visitors investigated the trail of crime created around this year's theme "Crime in Berlin" and celebrated Berlin's diverse museum scene across 75 museums hosting around 750 events.

With their imaginative programme inspired by this year's theme "Crime in Berlin", museums like the German Spy Museum, the Museum for Communication, the German Museum of Technology, the Berlin Museum of Medical History and the Samurai Museum Berlin were able to further boost the high number of visitors they have had in recent years. Small museums such as the Musical Instruments Museum, St. Nicholas Church and the Kurt Mühlenhaupt Museum also captivated plenty of night owls with their programme of music – from tango noir to eerie organ sounds and songs from the Neapolitan underworld. The carriages of the historical S-Bahn train, which shuttled people back and forth between Nordbahnhof and Priesterweg, were packed, and the silent film concerts on the Museumsinsel also attracted large audiences.

The next Long Night of Museums will take place on the 28th August 2027, when it will also be celebrating its 30-year anniversary.
